Nixon Calls on UN to Demand A Truce in Indo-Pakistan War

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12 (AP). -President Nixon called on the UN Security Council again today to urge a cense-fire in the India-Pakistan war and immediate withdrawal of Indian troops from Pakistan.

The White House issued a statement accusing India of "deflance of world opinion."

With East Pakistan virtually occupied by Indian troops, a continuation of the war would take on increasingly the character of armed attack on the very existence of a member state of the United Nations, the White House statement said.

Ambassador George Bush requested an immediate Security Council meeting to act on the resolution. The meeting was called for 4 p.m. today. Resolution Vetoed

The Security Council has failed previously to pass a similar reso-lution, due to a Soviet veto. But the General Assembly voted 104 to 11 on Dec. 7 to call on India and Pakistan to institute an imniediate crase-fire and withdraw troops from each other's territory.

India rejected this proposal. "We feel in light of current circumstances" there is no basis for the Security Council to again refuse to pass the resolution, Press Secretary Ron Ziegler said. "All permanent members of the Security Council have an obligation to end this threat to world

Gen. Sam Manekshaw, the Indian Army's chief of staff, had broadcast another surrender appeal yesterday, urging the Pakistani commander not to cause "unnecessary deaths of many of your soldiers" and adding, "Resistance is senseless."

Gen. Manekshaw's appeal, directed to Gen. Niazi of the enemy headquarters at Dacca, said the Indian Army knew of a mass breakout attempt planned for Chittagong port, and said it would be crushed, with many deaths among the Pakistanis. He said the plan involved five Pakistani merchant ships disguised as neutral vessels.

While flecing Pakistanis aban-doned many supplies, they took time yesterday to blow up the 5,900-foot Hardinge Bridge ecross the Ganges River, one of the larg-est bridges in the world. It was built 56 years ago and named for the Briton who was then viceroy of India. It carried road, rail and pedestrian routes and was the only rail and road link between north and south Bengal. Diplomats said India had directed the United Nations to stop all operations in East Pakistan today--obviously because the battle of Dacca was imminent.

As India reported a hall in ground fighting in the west, with the only action there by Indian planes raiding enemy installa-tions, New Delhi said today that reports from Jessore indicated Pakistan troops had butchered 10,000 civilians in that East Pakistani town, "liberated" by India last Monday. Syed Nazrul Islam, acting president, and Prime Minister Tajuddin Ahmed of the newly proclaimed independent Bangla Desh (Bengal nation), went to Jessore yesterday, for their first official visit to "liberated" territory in East Pakistan. They were wildly cheered by the town's survivors, who told tales of rape and massacre by the West Pakistani soldiers.

India reported yesterday that the western front's battle of the Tawi River, where Indian troops made a stand after yielding the nearby town of Chamb in heavy fighting last week, had apparently ended with perhaps 3,000 casualties for both sides in five days of fighting. British C-130s made four flights to Calcutta, India, in a dramatic airlift after three unsuccessful attempts in the past week. The camouflaged transports

> The Indian diplomats also rejected Mr. Kissinger's assertion that Mr. Yahya Khan's offer to accelerate the return of East Pakistan to civilian rule by December would have helped to resolve the problem.

The Pakistani design, the diplo mats alleged, was to transfer power in East Pakistan not to the elected Awami League representatives but to "quislings", who, had been defeated in the Decem-

But SAM Advisers Pull Back

Sadat Cites Links With Russians

By C. L. Sulzberger CAIRO, Dec. 12 (NYT) .- President Anwar Sadat has promised the Sovict Union to continue giving naval facilities to its Mediterranean fleet even after a Britain, Ireland and Denmark possible settlement of the conflict with Israel and, at the same time, has indicated his intention to keep Russian advisers attached to the Egyptian Army "because war is a science now." However, there are no longer any Soviet detachments at SAM (surface-to-air missile) batteries in the Suez Canal rone, the Egyptian leader said in an inter-view. The SAM sites in the canal area are now entirely manned by Egyptian crews and the Russian units have been withdrawn into tha heart of the country, accord-ing to Mr. Sadat.

Presumably this means the Nile Valley, which is known to be heavily defended by SAMs, especially large citles, airfields and dams. Moreover, it is believed that at least a small number of Soviet missile crews have been repatriated to the Soviet Union.

'In Hard Currency' Mr. Sadat said in a lengthy interview last week that Mossow has indicated more than once its desire to pull its troops out of Egypt although "I am paying their salaries in inard currency." He added: "Every time I try to pro-long their stay I must use all my efforts to convince them."

The conversation took place in English at the president's private residence just off the Nile.

Principal points made by Mr. Sadat included: • He is convinced that some kind of "written alliance" or "secret agreement" was arranged between Israel and the United States during the administration. of President Johnson, and Presidert Nizon discovered, after months of talks between U.S. and Egyptian negotiators, that he "cannot get himself loose from it."

 Nevertheless, he is still "quite ready for a peaceful solu-tion" to the conflict with Israel, "an honorable one." But he seemed to donht the chances because the Americans have "showed quite clearly they can't put pressure on Israel."

He is prepared to restore full.

Senators Plan To Filibuster on Foreign Aid Bill

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12 (WF). -A new impediment to rapid ad-journment of Congress developed. yesterday when a bloc of war critics in the Senate threatened to filibuster an emergency financing resolution on foreign aid.

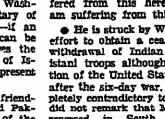

The senators, angry over tha bypassing of the regular foreign aid bill when it became tied up in a dispute over an "end-thewar" amendment, may hold up the $2.7 hillion emergency funding resolution for the aid program.

The regular foreign-aid authorization hill had been tied up in a dispute over Senate majority leader Mike Mansfield's proposal to end U.S. involvement in the Indochina war within six months. Sen. Mansfield, of Montana, had demanded a vote on the amendment in the House, but he was turned down by House conferees and the administration. House and Senate Republican leaders and House Democratic leaders then arranged to bypass the regular aid bill by pushing through an emergency funding resolution.

Senators, reportedly including William Proxmire, D., Wis., J. William Fulbright, D., Ark., and Alan Cranston, D., Calif., plan a battle to defeat or block the emergency resolution with the aim of slashing the amount or of he said.

of those who have spilled Wasti's hlood," he snapped when asked about prospects of reconciliation with the Palestinian commando organizations.

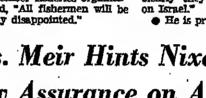

The king made it clear that Jordan's future relations with other Arab countries, as well as with the Palestinian Liberation Organization, would depend largely on the outcome of the Cairo trial of the four Palestinians accused of Mr. Tell's murder.

He made no direct accusations, but sources in his entourage be-lieve that Libya financed the tilling, which was planned in Lebanon and that it was carried out with the silent consent of the Egyptians.

We believe the assassination was not an isolated event hut part of a general plan aimed against Jordan's national unity." the king said. He added that, "for some time we knew there was a list of persons to be as-sassinated, including Wasfi and myself."

The assassing aimed at an eruption to disrupt national unity, but they didn't succeed," the king added.

The king said that the events of September, 1970, during which several thousand persons, mostly Palestinians, were killed in the Jordanian crackdown on the unruly commandos, were misinterpreted. Meanwhile, Mr. Fanfani, a former Premier, suffered fresh defections among the Christian Democrats as his support dropped from 385 votes in this morning's ballot to 378 tonight.

Ready for Talks

An important new development in tonight'e balloting was that the neo-Pascist and monarchist parties, who command about 50 of 1,008 available votes, dropped their support for their own candidate, Sen, Augusto de Mar-sanich, and handed in hlank voting slips. In this way, they indicated their readiness to placa their votes at the disposal of another candidate following negotiations. The influential Milan newspaper Corriere della Sera today described Mr. de Martino's chances of election as "zero," while Mr. Fanfani's prospects, even if potentially better than those of his Socialist rival, looked increasingly uncertain.

If the extreme rightist parties decided to vote for him, he would be likely to lose considerable support from the left wing of his own party.

The ultimate outcome of the election still seemed to depend npon an understanding between the Christian Democrats and the Communists, who so far have consistently backed Mr. ds Martino.

Stricken Subcontinent

The third Indian-Pakistani war appears to be heading toward an early end with victory for Indian arms in East Bengal and apparent failure of the Pakistanis to make serious inroads on the western front. But even with victory, the Indians, who never fail to set themselves up as apostles of peace, will find that the prospects are dim for conditions that will lead to enduring peace on the stricken subcontinent.

The current conflict will leave ancient antagonisms only intensified. It has seriously retarded development efforts in both India. and Pakistan that were already short of achieving the minimal goals necessary to preserve social order; indeed, the lack of development in heavily overpopulated East Bengal was an important source of the discontent in that Pakistani province that sparked the present explosion.

The most critical result of this tragic confrontation will be the emergence of Bangla Desh as a third major nation on the Indian subcontinent. This was perhaps inevitable. Separated by a distance of 1,200 miles and by differences in language and culture from their Moslem brothers in the West, the East Bengalis were always unlikely partners in the strong, centralized union that Pakistan's leaders have attempted to maintain. The Bengali desire for independence, based on fear and resentment of Punjabi domination. was a logical sequel to the original demand of Pakistan'e Moslem leaders for separation from predominantly Hindu India on similar grounds.

The trouble is that there is no telling were such secessionist sentiments will end on a subcontinent that is peopled by many differing races, religions, languages and cultures. The example of Bangla Desh could set off chain reactions in both Pakistan and India that would reduce the subcontinent to a Balkanized hodgepodge of quarteling, permanently impoverished states.

Bangla Desh itself, with 75 million people in an area the size of North Carolina (population five million) will be the world's eighth largest nation in terms of population. But it will also be among the world's poorest countries, with per capita annual income of only $30 and scant resources for development. It is destined, as one foreign expert recently observed, "to occupy a prominent position on the world dole for a long time to come." Even if other Pakistani and Indian states do not try to follow its secessionist example, Bangla Desh is bound to be an uncertain and unsettling factor on the subcontinent because of this desperate poverty.

To avoid further disintegration to regain lost momentum for development, it is essential that the fighting on the subcontinent be brought to a speedy end and that new bridges of understanding and cooperation be built, if possible, among the quarreling states. Like it or not, the peoples of the subcontinent share a common destiny. Disunity is the mortal enemy of the development that all of them desperately need.

'The Dream Must Be There'

Harold Wilson may be premature in negotiating with the terrorists. He also says claiming that the reunification of Ireland is now "on the agenda," but his carefully prepared proposals looking to that eventuality have pushed discussions of the Ulster crisis off dead center. The former prime minister deserves credit for mentioning what has been unmentionable in Westminster and for an imaginative approach that has drawn . for reunification. positive responses from the British and Irish governments.

How desperately such an initiative was needed is shown by the recent increase in savage killings in Northern Ireland, The Irish Republican Army provisionals struck a new low in barbarity when one of them entered the home of a construction worker in Belfast and gunned him down in cold blood in front of his five children-because he served in the part-time Ulster Defense Regiment. And then, terrorist bombers blew up a Belfast furniture store crowded with Christmas shoppers, killing four personstwo of them children-and wounding many others.

He reiterates British pledges of 1949 and 1969 that the consent of the people and Parliament of Northern Ireland would be required

Wilson thus hedges his long-run goal with many conditions and safeguards to reassure Northern Ireland's Protestant majority -including the preservation for the interim of the Stormont government and the suggestion that the Irish Republic rejoin the Commonwealth. Yet he would insure during this interim period that Ulster's Catholic minority would participate "at all levels of Parliament and government" regardless of their long-term views.

In existing conditions, it is easy to conclude that Wilson's far-reaching proposals will have no chance of success. The fact remains that both Heath and Prime Minister Lynch of the Irish Republic have endorsed Wilson's first steps for interparty praise Wilson for saying that a long-term discussions, eventually involving all three governments concerned. Even Prime Minister Faulkner of Northern Ireland has welcomed the talks, though he remains opposed to Wilson has restored a substantial measure of needed bipartisanship to Britain's Ulster policy and has raised the sights of the government by insisting that, although years must elapse before Ireland can be unified, "the dream must be there."

BRUSSELS Despite reaffirmstions of allied unity, increasing signs of neglect evinced by the United States toward NATO deeply distress many of its members who rely heavily on American leadership. Because of their longer experience of international involvement they are perhaps more aware than Americans that old allies, like old soldiers, can simpy fade away.

HERE

Soothing words were spoken at the meeting of alliance ministers, as is expected according to ritual. But beneath the pleasant surface lurks disquiet. It is not simply that Washington, as it has every right to do, keeps urging its European partners to make a greater effort and assume a larger burden of the common defense, it is rather a disquieting realization that the United States contribution 'must inevitably shrink and that there seems to be less United States interest in NATO as such.

Bad Neighbor Policy

OTTAWA.-In its relations with the United States these days, Canada feels a little like a woman having an affair with the big rich man next door. - She depends on him and he's a good provider, but he has a rowing eye and a lot of other affairs elsewhere, so there is a problem Maybe the best way to describe it is in the popular cliches of the day, which everybody up here in Canada seems to be using. Canada feels economically comfortable but psychologically and morally uneasy in its relations. with the United States these days, reasonably prosperous but overwhelmed, exploited, and trapped. Accordingly, Canada has an "identity crists" and even the beginnings of a "Canadian-Illi movement," It's not the big guy's money Canada minds, but his "benign neglect" and, like most women, she wants to know "where all this is leading" and what the big guy's intentions really are. This is why Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudéau went down to Washington the other day to talk to President Nixon before he decided on new legislation in Canada to restrict the control of American capital over Canadian companies. And, of course, he came back "reassured."

Closest Friend

Like most men in similar circumstances, Mr. Nixon said not to worry. America's new affair with China wouldn't hart Canada, he said, and his new mic policy wasn't intended to cut Canada's allowances per-manently, but only temporarily. After all, Canada was America's closest friend and first love, to say nothing of being America's best customer, and everybody in Washington wanted Canada to be prosperous, independent and calm.

Still, there is a delicate and fundamental problem here which, despite Mr. Nixon's generous and understanding attitude toward Trudeau, has not really been. faced. And this is that American capital and American business are co powerful that, just by doing what comes naturally, and without even thinking of their effect on the economy, independence, pride and even honor of Canada, they can dominate the life of Canada, and even corrupt Canada while enriching it.

To put the problem in another way, the Canadians are "reassured" by Nixon's promise that Washington does not have a conscious policy of dominating Canada or destroying its independence or its economic or cultural integrity. But they still feel he is not in control of the power of American business, which is increasingly taking over the natural resources and businesses of Canada, and, without intent, turning Canada, as the Canadians see it, into an economic and even

Indo-Pakistani War

The war has thrown a more glaring light than ever before on several ominous new features of the world scene, some of which had already been brought to notice by the Middle East war of 1967. As a peace-keeping or peace-making institution the UN has been brought to virtual collapse. The capacity of the great powers to influence events constructively has apparently been shown to be severely limited, and the Russo-Chinese rivalry in Asia has emerged as the new cold war of the seventies . . .

The new world pattern now emerging could be of a more volatile kind and dominated by several big powers, with China and eventually Japan and perhaps one day Western Europe added to the present two. But for the time being it is still primarily America and Russia that count.

Although the liquidation of East Pakistan has rationalized geography locally, it cannot be seen as a stabilizing event either regionally or internationally. The victory is not merely India's but Russia's. The future of Bangla Desh interests not merely India and Russia but, very critically, China.

The Americans will be anxious to recover from the alarming stupidity of their pro-Pakistani declarations. The great powers have kept their distance from the battlefield. But a new area of maximum sensitivity has been exposed between Sues and Saigon.

Concorde

The doubts and reservations expressed over the years are not diminished merely because Concorde has proved itself so convincingly a technical success. Nothing will remove its sonic boom, though it may in due course have quieter engines. The nuisance it causes to tens of thousands of people on the ground must be weighed against the convenience of a few hundreds of passengers. There are also doubts, still contested rather than tested. about the effect of numerous high-flying jets on the structure of the stratosphere. In all these questions of Concorde and environment, the claims of civilized living are more important than getting from one city to another in a desperate hurry.

LONDON-A service of unique interest took place yesterday morning in St. Marylebone Ohurch in celebration of the seventh anniversary of Robert Browning's death. If the poet and his wife had lived, it would also have been another anniversary of sorts, for they were married fifty years ago in this same church on September 12, 1846. She was the poetess, Elizabeth Barrett, who died in 1861. The Dean of Canterbury pronounced a noble culogy.

WASHINGTON, D.C .-- U.S. trade with China has increased 500 %. Data regarding the extent of of the sub-section of Far Eastern questions who are composing an entire new advisory program. American exports to Ohina in the past 12 months were valued at $150,000,000. Before the Great War, the total was $25,000,000. What the theoretical percentage of increased trade with China might amount to, is astro-

If anything were needed to emphasize this, it is the fact that there has been no American ambassador to the permanent alliance council for more than six months. This is all the more startling because Washington assured the first secretary general, Lord Ismay, that the United States would always have an envoy to NATO with sufficient prestige to contact the President immediately whenever he deemed this necessary.

Loosening Cement

Moreover, the European allies take this as a token of a gradual process that is loosening NATO's cemeut. They know, despite Nixon's assurances of support, that there is enormous political pressure to reduce the United States troop concentration, which, as a matter of fact, has been cut heavily over the last decade, Moreover, the inevitable devaluation of the dollar will cut American financial support in fact if not by intent because of its lowered purchasing power.

These things are recognized without overwhelming distress, But more deeply worrisome to the alliance is what Europeans see as a reversion by Nixon to 19th century methods of bilateral consultation and an apparent end to the kind of cosnultation of and with the alliance as a whole. One wise and experienced allied etatesman says:

"Nixon keeps insisting that he consults us. But the real fact is he consults only favored allies, one by one, never the alliance as a body. This process divides the alliance into different categories of membership and is fatal to the whole idea. "For the United States position is the coefficient for all other national positions. One by one the lesser partners begin to think they each have a national game to play since the United States has started to play its own national game in Europe rather than the alliance game as a whole.

Your leaders used to understand that NATO is a notion not a nation, a civilization and a culture like the Roman Empire, The notion of NATO has its borders in Europe and the Pacific coast of North America. But such comprehension is waning."

and the second second

This deeply warries the European allies although they hope to increase their own relative defensive effort. And even that is still dubious. Nobody who has, for example, seen slouching Danish soldiers with hair hanging to their shoulders and recalls the

For Western Europe, now completely recovered from the Gaul-list bender, has become a land of opportunity and innovation once again. The President is apt to achieve much more in his meetings with President Pompidou. Prime Minister Heath and Chancellor Brandt than he can in Peking and even Moscow.

. Money is first on the allied agenda. A general currency realignment favorable to the American trade balance is a central feature of the new economic policy initiated by the President on Aug. 15. As the recent gyrations of the stock market indicate, business confidence is heavily dependent upon a successful outcome of the currency negotiations between this country and the other leading non-Com munist industrial nations in the so-called Group of Ten.

Despite all the ballyhoo, the Rome meeting of the Group the week before last only settled what most of us have been saying for months-namely, that a deal can be struck. The specific terms have yet to be worked out. Since French insistence on an American devaluation of the dollar has been the main sticking point, the Nixon-Pompidou meeting is crucial.

After money comes trade. The continued economic well-being of the United States and its leading allies depends on an orderly ex-pansion of internationi commerce. That hope is now threatened from many quarters.

The European Common Market, through its agricultural policy and its preferential agreements with African producers, is one threat. Japan, by the tactic of suddenly flooding certain mar-kets, is a second threat. The "mainly American" multi-national corporations which export jobs and operate abroad without regard for local sovereignty are a third threat. The growing protectionist sentiment among labor and business in this country is a fourth threat.

We should like to point out that you are wrong (Dec. 3, p. 4) in saying that the Anglo-French super-sonic aircraft Concorde is "scheduled to go into commercial service within three years." This is impossible. The Concorde can never be a commercial proposition because the capital investment in it is already far too great to make any sense economically. All reasoning is against the Concorde. Commercially it is a non-starter, and the noise it makes and the pollution of the upper atmosphere proclaim it as the enemy of all who are concerned with environmental con-

Aftermath of Morocco's Abortive Coup Hassan: Unlikely Role of Reformer

By Jonathan C. Randal

RABAT. Morocco (WP).-In a fit of uncharacteristic energy, Morocco's King Hassan II has bestirred himself from the round of girls and golf that his increasingly outspoken critics be-lieve to he his favorite pastimes.

The reforms that punctuated Ramadan-the Moslem equivalent of Lent-last month were surprising, however, only for their delayed timing. In the view of Moroccan and foreign observers, the king has had little real choice since July 10, when an abortive army coup turned his 42d birthday party into a scene of carnage.

Before the coup attempt at the nearby Skhirat summer palace was put down by loyalist troops, 100 of the king's Moroccan and foreign guests were dead, along with 350 Moroccan soldiers, including 10 of the country's 15 generals.

The king lived through the humiliation of being forced to hide in a room for much of the carnage, then having to hold his hands over his head like the rest of his frightened guests.

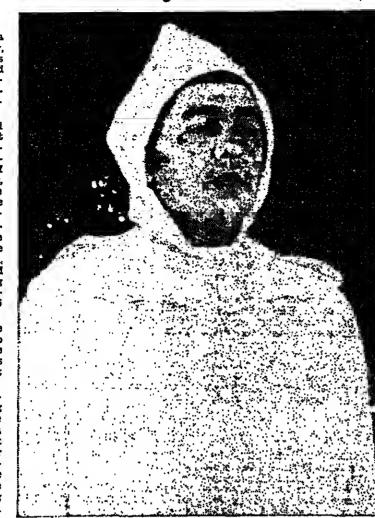

Explaining wby cadets had attempted the coup, one young rebel is said to have told the king, "We thought you were a prisoner of your guests," a remark less naive than it seems. For the world that the guests represented-if not necessarily the guests themselves-mirrored the corruption and influence-peddling that had become customary m Hassan's Morocco.

A Month in Fez

It was against these excesses that the army plotters were said to have taken arms, destroying the credibility of the army's total devotion to the throne, a devotion based on the spiritual and temporal powers wielded by Hassan's Alaouite dynasty since the 16th century.

Faced with the results of his 10-year reign-a stagnating economy and a near-record popula-tion growth-the king, after the coup attempt, retired to Fez for more than a month to play golf and meditate. Then he ordered some reforms, which were received without enthusiasm. Civil servants' wages, for example, were raised 15 percent in the first pay increase since independence in 1956. The raise was designed to keep the officials honest, to prevent them from selling birth certificates, identity cards and drivers' licenses-the documents that allow Moroccans to work in Europe.

The party is also not demanding the custer of Defense Minis-ter Mohammed Oufkir, who during his long service as interior minister tried to stamp it out, Nor is the party continuing to seek the Interior Ministry in any caretaker government that would prepare for elections on the basis of universal suffrage, but is willing to settle for guarantees that the elections will be reasonably honest. Similarly, demands for the election of a special constituent assembly to write a new constitution may be dropped in favor of allowing the new parliament to change the constitution.

Clearly, the reforms under discussion mean that the government would be responsible to parliament, rather than to the king, as is now the case. Still undecided is the king's desire to keep the referendum as a weapon appeal directly to the nation on "vital legislation."

If the parties are talking about detailed steps they feel must be taken before forming a caretaker government, there is equal move-ment in the palace. "The king wants to keep the Interior, Defense and Foreign Ministries," a palace source said, "and the parties can have the entire economic sector.

That is what scares the National Front. Both parties have spent so many years warning about the sad state of the economy that they privately bemoan the "poisoned gift" the king would be handing them.

Despite huge foreign ald-the United States, for example, has spent more than $700 million here since 1956, the most accorded any country in Africa-economic growth only barely keeps ahead of the 3.3 percent annual rise in population.

NEW YORK (NYT) .-- In Calcutta last Thursday, a British-trained Indian general gave a terse description of the enemy rout in East Pakistan: "When you get outmaneuvered and feel you are going to get beaten badly, a chap says. Let me get the hell out of here and see if I can fight in another place.' " light in another place." In East Pakistan, the general's Fighting On report took on epic-and tragic-human scale. Outnumbered on the ground and under shaling from the sky, Punjabi soldiers from West Pakisian 1,000 miles away were failing back toward Dacca and the sea, through a hostile Bengali populace roused to merciless revenge. In town and village, the advancing Indian troops were met with jubilation and cries of "Joi Bangla!"— "Victory for Bengal!"

Before a cheering Parliament in New Delhi, Prime Minister Indira Gandhi announced formal recognition of the governmentin-exile of Bangla Desh; or Bengal Nation, the new state that was soon to be set up in the east, leaving Pakistan with only its. western wing.

In the west, the Indian strategy of standolf pending victory in the east was working too. Pakistan was thrusting into southern Kashmir, trying to isolate Indian forces farther to the north, but the attack seemed stalled while planes of both sides swapped strikes across the 1,400-mile-long border. The bulk of West Pakistan's 11 infantry and two armored divisions has not attacked the main Indian positions, tending to confirm the belief that Rawalpindi's hope had been not for military victory but for international intervention that would freeze its increasingly untenable position in the rebellious east. Standar, and the set

In further admission that the average Moroccan had been squeezed by corruption and unfair taxation, the authorities lowered taxes on transistor radios, bicycles and sugar. which had become so expensive that per capita consumption declined from 66 pounds to 55 pounds in a decade.

The army was treated to repainted barracks, increased pensions and pay, lowered retirement age, more promotions and cars and villas for some officers.

Although these early reforms were important, they left unanswered the key question of whether the king was willing to cease exercising near-absolute power and accept the role of a constitutional monarch.

Wider Measures

The Ramadan measures were more extensive. The king ordered the arrests of former ministers. high civil servants and well-connected businessmen ou corruption charges, increased the military budget, slashed his own civil list and raised the minimum farm and industrial wages.

World's Biggest Hydroelectric Plant Completed

MOSCOW. Dec. 12 (NYT) .---The Soviet Union announced today the completion of the world's largest hydroelectric plant, a Siberian station that has three times the rated capacity of America's Grand Coulee Dam on the Columbia River in the state of Washington.

The installation of the final generating unit in the six-million-kilowatt complex, near Krasnoyarsk, on the Yenisei River, marked a significant advance in Soviet efforts to tame the vast power of the great Siberian streams and rectify a serious im-balance in the location of the nation's productive forces.

As in the United States, an increasing energy shortage has been developing in the Soviet Union's leading manufacturing centers, which together with much of the population are concentrated in the western regions in European Russia.

At the same time, the greater part of Soviet resources of fuel and energy are concentrated thousands of miles to the east.

He quickly expressed the hope that Moroccans would soon find another source of conversation: corruption has been the main topic.

The opposition press keeps calling for more arrests-and espe-cially more details of the investigations now under way. The king is in no mood to provide details. Many of the rumors lead back to the royal family, expecially to Hassan's younger brother, Prince Moulay Abdullah.

Since Ramadan the palace has also stopped seizing opposition newspapers. The National Union of Popular Forces has been authorized to publish newspapers after a long ban, and it has been made known that even the Communists may be allowed to have a paper.

The tacit price is not publishing the dossiers that every editor says he has locked in his desk.

The public is expected to be satisfied with the crackdown on "the Fassis," technically the citizens of Fez, but now a term for the wheeler-dealer businessmen who control economic life in the main commercial center of Casablanca as well.

Also under arrest are five former ministers-Yahia Chek-chaoun, Mohammed Jaidi, Mabmoun Tahiri, Abdelkrim Lazrak and Abdel Kriem-who were long involved in the financial affairs of the monarchy.

arrest is believed to be linked to efforts to obtain a rumored $1.8 - million kickback for the construction in Casablanca of an Intercontinental hotel by Pan American World AITWRVS.

It was reportedly discovery of this deal that led Gen. Moham-med Medbouh, chief of the king's military household, to force the resignations of the ministers last spring. Dissatisfied with the king's refusal then to bring the ministers to trial, the general is said to have masterminded the Skhirat coop in which he lost his life.

All Details Noted

Two top civil servants of the mineral resources bureau, Bdelaziz Benchekroum and Driss ben Bachir, are also under arrest now.

By Thomas E. Mullaney NEW YORK, Dec. 12 (NYT).-After its spectacular short-term advance since Thanksgiving, the stock market underwent a consolidation phase last week largely because it had no fresh stimulus from either the latest domestic economic data or the interna-tional negotiations on trade and currency problems.

The market backed and filled in narrow day-to-day fluctuations and ended with elight losses in the leading stock averages as the trading pace slowed down from the big volume on the upside last wook.

Nevertheless, the mood in Wall Street remained rather confident. The optimists were encouraged by the market's stability in the face of the expected profit-taking following the strong 7.6 percent jump in the Dow-Jones average between Nov. 24 and Dec. 3. There was simply a lack of buying onthusiasm last week pending some hopeful new developments in the economy or the world trade and monetary situation. One disturbing note appeared when Common Market officials reacted unfavorably at a Brussels meeting when the United States presented its demands on Western Europe for removing some of the restrictive trade practices that inhibit American exports, particularly in the agricultural area. The fear emerged that protrocted trado hargaining might delay a settlement of the world monetary crisis.

NEW YORK, Dec. 12 (NYT) .- Prices on the American Stock Ex-change and on the Over-the-Counter Market finished highler last week aithough their gains were considerably less than in the preceding week when both lists made sharp advances, Brokers noted that profit-taking and investors' concern over the

India-Pakistan war were factors in limiting last week's price gains. Some brokers said they noted institutional activity in many depressed stocks, indicating that mutual funds could be clearing unattractive issues from their portfolios in preparing their year-end recorts. The exchange's price index finished on Friday at 24.94, up 0.34 from the close of the preceding week. Turnover on the exchange fell to 20.81 million shares from 22.68 million the week before. A total of 41 blocks of 10,000 shares or more were traded last week against 69 blocks the week before.

The most actively traded issue on the Amex last week was Syntex, which rose 1 5/8 to 83 1.2 on a turnover of 374,100 shares. In second place were the warrants of Trans World Airlines, which advanced 1 7/8 to 27 5/8 on 271,300 shares. Tho big gainer of the week was Teleprompter, which soared 17 1/8 to close at 110 1/4. The stock benefited from a report by the Sloan commission on cable television which proposed less government regulation for the industry.

In the counter market, the NASDAQ industrial index on Friday ended at 109.79, up 2.85 for the week. One of the bigger losers in the counter market was Hallcraft

the $36-billion tax-reduction bill

By late last week, the Price Commission had received nearly 1,200 applications for price increases from more than 700 companies, and had approved 127 of them. Only fivo requests had been denied. And there were reports that widespread price increases were being made by smaller concerns that did not havo to seek approval of the government panel.

Steel Price Rise

The week's major devolopment on prices was the commission's decision granting the United States Sleel Corporation authority to raise its charges by an average of 3.6 percent, substan-tially less than had been expected and lower than the cost increases that the industry's pacesetter sald it had incurred.

Nevertheless, the decision, in turning away from product-by-product actions, afforded the company flexibility in pricing particular products. Some prices (Continued on Page 9

Bond Market Improves

Meanwhile, the improvement in the bond market, with prices ris-ing and interest rates declining ogain last week, was ottributed chiefly to the belief that progress is indeed being made toward settling international monetary turmoil It was largely this spreading optimism that pushed top-quality utility bond yields from 7.46 percent in mid-November down to 7.28 percent last week, the lowest rate for such bonds since late in -March,

In the tax-exempt sector, the Bond Buyer yield Index-the equivalent of a Dow-Jones average for municipal boods-declined for the first time in five weeks, going down to 5.23 percent from 5.44 a week earlier.

On the new-lasus side, the Development Bank of Singapore is planning a $10-million, 10-year bond which is being hailed as the first Asian dollar bond. The only difference between this and other International bond issues denominated in dollars is that the Singapore bond will be taken up mainly in the Far East.

Lead underwriter of the issue is Daiwa Securities, the first time a Japanese firm has managed the books on a dollar bond, Much of the issue will be placed in Japan thanks to the government's making an exception in its exchange controls.

mained unquestioned to the end, and it is never seriously reexamined in this record. Within the Labor government, it quickly became treason to question the parity of sterling. George Brown, the second ranking man in both the party and the government, persisted private-ly in questioning the sacrifice of growth and employment to a financial totem. He is treated in this memoir with a contempt that his generous if sometimes exasperating spirit ill deserves."

Britain's determination to put the pound in the front line of: defense for the dollar pleased the United States mightily. The.decision merely delayed the day of reckoning for a creaking mone-tary system in which the dollar was king. Washington coughed up the loans to support the pound, and the British government glo-ried in the role of a junior partner. on the world stage. Wilson is never so proud in these pages as when recounting the 1966 Washington visit when Johnson fatuously compared him to Winston Churchill.

This is not to say that Britain retained its international role be-cause of anything so crass as a quid pro quo for American sup-port of the pound. But once the decision was made to follow financial tradition, all other decisions flowed from it into the traditional mold. The pound 15self became the overriding political factor. Dévaluation was damned by Wilson as "the soft option." Instead of mobilizing the social revolution slready sthring, Wilson created alphabet agencies to reorganize industry, sang the praises of technology and produc-tivity, and directed his government's energies toward revolu-. tionizing those thrilling statistics of the balance of payments.

When the Colt offence let Miami have the ball, the defense took over and came within Gara Yepremian's 17-yard field goal of posting a shutout, which would have been its fourth of the season, over a team with one of the highest scoring averages in the league, 24 points a game. The defense bottled up the NFL's No. 1 rushing offense (182) yards a game), holding the Dolphins to an almost invisible 17 in the first half and 101 overall.

Crucial Plays Furthermore, the Colts stopped what faw crucial plays Miami had and intercepted two of Boo Greise's passes in the fourth quarter, when the Dolphins desper-ately tried to pull out a victory such as the 17-14 decision they achieved over Baltimore last month. "Maybe we wanted this a little more than they did," said the genteed Bubba Smith, who, with Ted Hendricks, blocked Yepremian's S1-yard field goal attempt late in the first half.

Miss Rouvier, 22, won her first World Cup ski race after four years of trying and she gave the French their first victory of the season after three straight losses, a drought which the French ara not accustomed to.

Miss Rouvier is now second in the women's World Cup standings with 40 points, 5 behind Austria's Anne-Marie Proell, who tinished second yesterday. It was also the sixth straight time that the French girl has finished in the top 10 in a cup downhill. She has usually been a victim of Miss Proell, who won last year's cup and started this season with a roaring victory in a downhill last week. In that race, Miss Rouvier was second and Miss Nelson was 13th. The American's finish left several coaches jealous and had French coach Jean Beranger

LONDON, Dec. 12 (Reuters) .---Sweden's Ronnie Peterson was awarded the British Guild of Motoring Writer's "Driver of the Year" trophy Friday night. Peterson won this years Formula Two European trophy and was runner-up to Scotland's Jackie Stewart for the Formula One world title with 33 points.

Elsewhere, No. 2 Marquette mauled No. 9 Michigan 81-52, No. 3 North Carolina defeated Virginia Tech, 93-60, and No. 8 Jecksonville beat Georgia Southern, 106-88. Ohio U. didn't appear to have a chance against Ohio State's defending Big Ten champions, even though the Buckeyes are missing injured star guard Alan Hornvak.

The Mid-American Conference club used a three-guard defense on Ohio State's 7-foot center, Luke Witte, The Buckeye ace managed 21 points, but it wasn't enough.

"We fronted on Witte and used inside help," said coach Jim Snyder. "It broke down a few times,

Awkward Facts

By Russell Baker WASHINGTON. - Once again W everybody seems to agree that President Nixon is a brilliantly astute politician. Democrats, if the papers can be believ-ed, can hardly be restrained from crying "gee whiz!" At every move the Presidont makes; those Agnewian devils, the columnists and commentators, scarcely let a day pass without addressing themselves in awe to the President's political mastery.

Baker

Except for the few who watch American politics out of a passion for irony, this sort of nonsense is probably absorbed unthinkingly. In Washington, when Presidents are having a good season, everybody says it is because of their political genius. It is one or those things people do in Washington, a place where no obsequiousness can be too excessive to offer a winner and no abuse too vile for a loser.

A President on a hot streak is never said to be winning because he has had a good run of breaks, or because he has been mean spirited enough to swallow inexpedient principle, or because the people he is up against are a bunch of bums. He is always said to be a brilliantly astute politician.

President Elsenhower, who may have been more clever about politics than Mrs. Wiggs of the cabbage patch, but not much, was, and still is, praised as one of the most brilliant political masters of the age. He won didn't he?

Well, these things get said about winners. Brilliantly astute political master, and all that. And very soon everybody believes it, maybe because we absorb it in self-defense, assuming that if we surrender and say, "okay, that Ike and that Nixon are truly brilliant political masters," the drum beaters will leave us in peace.

This process, or some process like it, accounts for the strange way that highly moot points have, in American politics, of becoming undisputed fact. President Nixon as a brilliant politician is very moot indeed.

In 1960, he blew a sure-thing election to the presidency. Two years later, his political brilliance was insufficient to beat Pat Brown for the governorship of California. Presented with another lead-pipe cinch in 1968, he still managed a thrillingly close brust with defeat.

The President is not the only tation. politician being victimized these day: by the Washington weakness for gliding over awkward facts in order to fit our great men carried with him to the grave with convenient labels.

Sen, Henry Jackson, the Washington Democrat who is running for President, has, for some reason, been stamped "conservative," and the label has now been spoken and written so frequently that if he should get his party's nomination, eli Democrats who fancy themselves liberals will feel obliged to burn down the Italy's Blue Team Beats the Aces In $15,000 Bridge Play in U.S.

By Alan Truscott

LAS VEGAS, Nev. Dec. 12 (NYT) .- The old world champlons of bridge, from Italy and representing the Old World, decisively defeated the new world champions (from the New. World, of course), in the $15,000 challenge match that ended here last night.

At the end of 140 deals, the Blue Team comprising Benito Garozzo, Plebro Forquet. Giorgio Belladonna, Walter Avarelli, Massimo d'Alelio and Camillo Pabis-Ticci, won by 84 international match points. Their opponents were. The Aces, the current world titleholders, comprising Robert Wolff, Jim Jacoby, Bob Hamman, Bob Goldman, Mike Lawrence and Paul Soloway.

This was the first time these two great teams had met. The Bloe Team retired from world championship play in 1969. For the first half of the match the play was evenly balanced, but for the next 50 deals the Italians dominated the proceedings. In the final 20 deals both teams played in their best form and there was little change in the score. The final total was 338-254 in favor of the Blue Team,

1. Geren 17 73 GIs in Japan Storm PEOPLE: Fonda Anti-War Show

It was a rough weekend on per formers.

First in Yokosuka, Japan, yes terday, a group of servicement defending the American role in Vietnam mounted the stage during an anti-war show by Jane Fonds's troupe and engaged in a brief shoving match with the performers. "We fought in Vietnam against Communist aggression," shouted an army enlisted man during an anti-war speech by ac-tor Donald Sutherland. Then the unidentified heckler and some 10 of his mates left their seats and stormed the stage, while other GIs in the sudience urged them to back off. After interrupting the show for about 10 minutes, the soldlers left the stage voluntarily.

Shortly afterward, the Fonda show flew to Okinawa for three more shows, hoping to return to Japan for yet another. Though Japanese officials had first said their tourist visas were mcompatible" with their activities, they were later given provisional entries allowing them to perform two shows near U.S. bases near Tokyo.

Meanwhile, American rock star Frank Zappa, 31, was under observation in a London hospital today after being seriously injured during his show at the Rainbow Theatre late Friday hight. Zappa suffered a broken leg and a concussion when a man leapt onto the stage, grappled with the singer, and pushed him into the orchestra pit 10 feet below. Michael Jaffe, business manager of the theater, said, "The man went absolutely mad. He said he was upset because his girlfriend had a crush on Zappa." Police detained Zappa'r attacker, identilled as Trever Howell; 24, who appeared in a London court and was remanded on $500 bail.

"that sounds a little like a masked bali. 'marquis.' an operetta Ancient Virtues perhaps, whereas 'count' is much simpler, you see, more well established." A French biographer of de-Sade. Gilbert Lely, Boquainted the new marguis with his ances-The contradictions do not bother him. "The important thing." he said. "is to re-establish tor's virtues as a revolutionary;

"So I began working quietly for his rehabilitation, a very difficult rehabilitation because in France or elsewhere when someone is killed they say it's a sadistic crime, inserting the marquis's name, which is completely uniair because the marquis never killed anyone. When there's a torture
